

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A metal film formed of a first metal having relatively high oxygen absorption properties on a silicon region, and then depositing a high dielectric constant film formed of an oxide of a second metal having relatively low oxygen absorption properties on the metal
5 film. Thereafter, a conductive film is formed on the high dielectric constant film and then the conductive film is patterned, thereby forming an electrode.